The one-year postgraduate programme (LL.M.) in Law & Development integrates:
A rigorous philosophical and conceptual analysis of legal doctrine with social scientific enquiry into law and society in India.

The programme includes:
- A professional field engagement with legal and social problems
- A four-weeks’ external internship
- Advanced legal research and writing leading to a dissertation
FACULTY

Sudhir Krishnaswamy holds a D.Phil. from the University of Oxford. He teaches courses on Law and Justice, Constitutional and Administrative Foundations of the State Institutions, and Comparative Public Law. His research interests include constitutional law, political philosophy, and empirical analysis of the Indian legal system.

Arun Thiruvengadam holds a J.S.D. from the New York University. He teaches courses on Constitutional and Administrative Foundations of State Institutions in India, Welfare Rights in India, Comparative Public Law, and Law and Development. His research interests include comparative constitutional law and theory, Indian constitutional law, law and development, and legal education.

Sitharamam Kakarala holds a Ph.D. from the Centre of Social Studies. He teaches courses on Human Rights and Development, and Research Methods. His research interests include social-legal and political theory, law and culture, human rights, comparative law, and comparative constitutionalism.

Neeraj Grover holds an LL.M. from the National University of Singapore. He teaches courses on Foundations of Private Law, Law and Development, and Comparative Corporate Governance. His research interests include conflict of laws, corporate governance, contracts and international commercial arbitration.

Kanika Gauba holds an LL.M. from the National Law University, Delhi. She teaches courses on Law and Justice, Indian Politics, Nation in the Legal Imagination, and Law and Governance. Her research interests include constitutional theory, comparative constitutionalism, and postcolonial theory. She is currently on deputation leave.

Anshuman Singh holds an LL.M. from the National Law University, Delhi. He teaches courses on Law and Literature, Law Politics and Popular Culture, and Law and Development. His research interests include areas of intersections between jurisprudence and orthodox marxism. He is currently on deputation leave.
FACULTY

Varsha Aithala holds an M.C.L. from the University of Cambridge. She teaches courses on Foundations of Private Law, and Legal Systems Reforms. Her research interests include contract law, corporate law, legal education and law practice.

Siddharth Swaminathan holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from the Claremont Graduate University. He teaches courses on Research Design and Causal, and Inferential Methods. His research interests include urban citizenship, public opinion, and political demography.

Vishnupad holds a Ph.D from the Columbia University, New York. He teaches courses on Everyday Modern State and Law, Nationalism, and Capitalism. His research interests include political anthropology, law, media and political theology and secularism.

Moyukh Chatterjee holds a Ph.D. in Anthropology from the Emory University. He teaches courses on Law and Violence, State and Governance, and Politics and Political philosophy. His research interests include political and legal anthropology, state formation and violence, everyday political cultures, and urban infrastructure.

Srikrishna Ayyangar holds a Ph.D. from the Maxwell School at Syracuse University. He teaches courses on Public Policy, Implementation Theory, and Comparative Politics. His research interests include Populism Theory in India and elsewhere, Implementation studies and on Governance.

A. Narayana holds a Ph.D. from the University of Sussex. He teaches a range of core and elective courses on state, policy, and governance. His research interests include regional politics, land governance, local governance, and electronics governance.
The University is a member and active participant of:

The Asian Law Institute, National University of Singapore.
https://law.nus.edu.sg/asli

The Law and Development Research Network.
https://lawdev.org