Our organisation

Operating units: which is how and where we do our work.

- Field Institutes: Our institutional presence on the ground through which we do a range of our own work, from education to health, livelihoods and more; and also work with partners.
- Grants: Where we provide financial grants to our Partners (other NGOs) to do their work.
- University: Our University across multiple campuses is run with the purpose of contributing to the social sector.

Expertise verticals or groups: The different areas of our work – education, health, livelihoods, and more – require relevant expertise. Verticals or groups ensure the acquisition and development of such expertise and its integration in our work closest to where the work happens – in the Field Institutes, with Partners, and in the University.

Enabling functions: These are functions, such as Communications, Finance, Information Technology, Infrastructure Management, Knowledge Management, New Initiatives and People Function (Human Resources), which ‘enable’ and work with the entire organisation.

Endowment Office: A professional investment team manages our Endowment.
